

Steve Weiner- Former Hurst Sales Engineer

Steve Weiner is probably one of the oldest Hurst employees, having started with the company in 1960 at the age of 18. We are very excited to announce that Steve will be joining us at the Hurst Showcase! Steve was at Hurst almost from the beginning and he was deeply involved in the business, so he knows it well. Steve will be at the show all weekend to meet fans, sign autographs, talk about his time at Hurst-Campbell and join his former coworkers in a panel discussion regarding this automotive icon.

His first two jobs at Hurst were painting the motor mounts and maintaining inventory control and statistics of all products sold. He later took accounting and business courses at Temple University and George Hurst paid his tuition. Steve later relocated to the Willow Grove facility in an office next to George where he responded to the hundreds of technical inquiries the company received daily. It was around this time that his title became "Sales Engineer." Most of the questions were of a technical nature and many people had the same questions. Steve and Jim worked out a system of standard answers and assigned each one a number. Once the issue was identified, Steve would respond with the correctly numbered response.
